Arrest of Southport burglary suspect doesn't stop robberies

By Steve Marschke

A burglary wave in the Broderick (northwest) area of West Sacramento has cooled, but police are still trying to stop a string of daylight burglaries affecting the rural areas of Southport, in the southern half of the city.

"We're still being hit by a burglar in the Southport area," said Sgt. Rick Mayoral of the West Sacramento Police Department. "They go up and knock on the door, and if no one's home, they get in any way they can."

He said that the burblaries are occurring on streets such as Jefferson Blvd., Antioch and Seymour, which are sparsely populated.

He added that neighbors have reported after-the-fact that they saw someone suspicious around the time of the burglaries, but didn't think it was important enough to call the police.

"If anybody sees anything suspicious, such as a vehicle out of place, they shouldn't wait to tell their neighbor the next day. They should call us. We'd much rather be called somewhere on a wild goose chase than to miss a suspect because we didn't find out until the next day.

Mayoral said that suspicious activities may be reported by calling the police department's emergency line at 372-2044, or even by dialing 911.

Police arrested one suspect in the Southport cases, but the burglaries are continuing anyway.

Potnick voted new vice mayor (again) by 3-2 vote

In a re-vote of the July 15 city councilman, council member Greg Potnick was again voted into the office of mayor pro tem (vice mayor) by a 3-2 vote. The new mayor, Cindy Tuttle, called for the re-vote after receiving some criticism that she had cut short discussion on the issue the first time around.

In a procedural change, Mayor Tuttle first called for all nominations for the vice mayor's office before calling for a vote.

Councilman Roland Hensley nominated Bill Kristoff -- a move which was disallowed during the earlier meeting because the motion to elect Potnick was already on the floor, awaiting the vote.

But the second time (last Wednesday), Tuttle took both the Kristoff and the Potnick nomination before any vote. By a 3-2 split, with Kristoff and Hensley dissenting, the council voted down Kristoff's nomination.

A majority of Tuttle, Potnick and Wes Beers then confirmed Potnick into the post.

In West Sacramento, the mayor and vice mayor are selected from among the council's ranks by a city council vote.

Administrators pitch in School superintendent Dr. Dave Miller and River City High School vice principal Kenneth Whittemore were among those on hand to unload 200 new desks which arrived for the high school campus last week.

Also delivered was a new Ford Taurus to be used for the school's driver education program, replacing an aging vehicle previously used by the students and instructors.

A handful of people, including the administrators, helped unpack created desks from a truck.

"If we expect our kids to take pride in their school, we have to show them we take pride in it also," said Whittemore.

Plant again in violation

■ Improvements at plant, toxic releases from local businesses may share blame for poorly treated sewage

By David Weller

The West Sacramento wastewater treatment plant was found to be operating in violation of state law for several days during the last two weeks.

The violations were reported to state regulators by the city on Friday, July 15. On the following Monday, state inspectors arrived for an unannounced inspection and found that the plant had been operating in "an extreme condition of upset," according to water quality inspector Richard McHenry.

The plant is a biomass treatment facility which depends upon living micro-organisms to help rid the sewage of solid waste. Problems have historically occurred when the micro-organisms are killed or sickened by an unexpected influx of toxic chemicals. When this occurs, it can take the plant several days to recover. At these times the plant is said to be "upset."

The challenge for the city is to make the system more resilient, so that the microbes will not be suddenly overwhelmed when uncontrolled toxic substances are put into the sewers. "We are attempting to operate in a manner which will allow us to give the system a cushion to absorb the shock loads that we can't control. We've been much more successful this year than in previous years," said Larry Gossett, head of the public works department.

The city has been working with an engineering consulting firm, CH2M-Hill, to strengthen the treatment process. Ironically the fact that the system is currently undergoing a change is thought to be one cause of the recent upset.

A Water Quality Control Board (WQCB) staff report to be presented to the board at an August 4 meeting says, "Historically, the most serious plant upsets have occurred during the summer. The City had effluent violations in June and July 1994, but these are attributed primarily to problems in changing the mode of plant operations to better respond to industrial discharges."

The state inspector said that the changes in the system are partly to blame for the most recent upset, but that toxic industrial waste is also partly responsible. The sample taken on July 18 contained toxic chemicals.

Sewage going into the plant goes through several steps of treatment. First it goes through a grinder, then into a large holding tank in which solid waste settles to the bottom.

The solid "sludge" is removed and the water is pumped into an aeration basin where the microorganisms eat it and settle to the bottom. From there the clean water flows into a chlorination tank where the bacteria in the water are killed. After the chlorine is removed, the water is pumped into the river.

When the microbes are overwhelmed by toxic substances, they are no longer able to break down the solid waste in the water. When that happens, the solids flow into the chlorination tank and overwhelm the chlorine treatment. The chlorine is no longer sufficient to kill the bacteria in the water. In the end, the water that should have been cleaned by microbes of solid fecal material, and cleaned by chlorine of bacteria, flows into the river without adequate treatment.

The plant failed tests for coliform bacteria on July 12, 13, 15, 16, and 18. It failed tests for settleable solids on July 17 and 18. And it failed acidity tests on July 17, 18, and 24.

The inspectors showed up on Monday, July 18 in part because the city had notified them of violations, and in part because they were preparing a report to be presented to the Water Quality Control Board on August 4.

At that meeting the board will listen to public testimony and then decide whether or not to accept the city's $250,000 fine payment. Possible board actions at the meeting include the discussion of a Cease and Desist (C & D) order which could include a connection moratorium. Such an order would deny the city the right to add new industrial or

Monastery:

Plans are underway to finish converting the once-ritzy El Rancho Hotel at West Capitol Ave. and Merkley Ave. into a Buddhist monastery, nunnery and college.

The property was purchased by the Dharma Realm Buddhist Association of Burlingame after the previous owner, Robert Stahl, failed to interest other potential buyers -- including the city of West Sacramento.

On Thursday, the Buddhist organization will apply for a conditional use permit to further modify the hotel.

Construction is being handled by Wiese Contractors of Rancho Cordova.

Recommendation: No moratorium on city's growth

State officials are slated to discuss taking measures against West Sacramento for its recent sewage treatment plant violations at a meeting on Aug. 4.

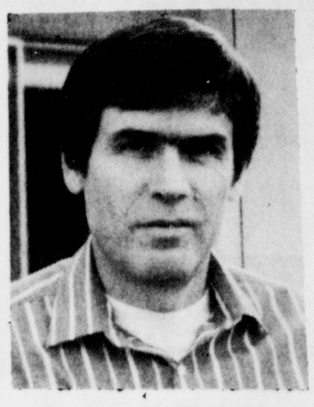
But the newly-released staff report by the Central Valley Regional Water Quality Control Board will recommend against imposing a growth moratorium on the city.

The report, which will be presented to the water board members for action, states that the city plant "has adequate capacity to handle these wastes."

City manager Joe Goeden earlier told the News-Ledger he expected that the moratorium issue would fall by the wayside after the city had a chance to report to state officials on the capacity of the city sewage plant.

Childbirth: I'm not afraid to admit I'm a coward

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

A good buddy of mine and I were up on the river the other day having a nice, leisurely lunch when all of a sudden he started going on and on about the recent natural birth of his first granddaughter. Being the wonderful friend and good listener I am, I wrinkled up my face and finally blurted out, "Hey, I'm trying to eat here."

"But you should have seen it, Daryl," he continued. "It was really something. It was so -- so -- spiritual."

"How come they let you in?" I asked, pushing away what was left of my plate of fettucine alfredo.

"My daughter insisted," he explained with pride. "We had most of the family right there in the birthing room."

"You're putting me on?"

"No I'm not. And my son-in-law was really something. He attended all these special classes where they taught him how to coach my daughter with her breathing. When they got done with him, he was an expert on everything from Fallopian tubes to the uterus. And my daughter just loved having him with her throughout the whole thing. Right before the baby came, she must have whispered to him that she loved him a half dozen times."

"Really?" I said, recalling a somewhat different response from my wife just a few minutes before the birth of our last child. In fact, if I remember correctly, I believe her final loving words to me as they hauled her into the delivery room were, "Don't you ever do this to me again!"

"I sure wish natural childbirth had been popular back when our wives were having their babies," continued my friend. "Don't you feel like we've really missed something?"

I nodded my head yes, but silently thanked God for putting women in charge of giving birth, and men in charge of things like changing the oil in the car and cleaning out the rabbit cage.

Anyway, even though I never got around to witnessing the actual birth of any of my four children, I do have a number of recollections which are burned into what is left of my memory banks. For instance, there was this sadistic nurse in charge of cleaning up newborns who kept scrubbing my screaming daughter's head with a wire brush. When I threatened to use the same brush on the nurse's head, I was politely asked to step outside for awhile; When my first son was about to be born, my wife told me that whatever I did, not to allow the doctors to give her any drugs. Then, as I assured her that I wouldn't let them give her as much as an aspirin, a very unpleasant contraction suddenly began and she screamed, "I want a saddle block -- and I want it now!"; Just before my second son was born, when my wife's contractions were only minutes apart and her fingernails were digging deep into my forearm, I distinctively remember thinking to myself that when husbands roll their pregnant wives into the hospital, they all ought to be issued those thick leather pads that wildlife experts use when they handle eagles or other large birds of prey; And right after my last son was born, I remember how my wife's obstetrician strolled over to me, handed me this little piece of paper and whispered, "Here, your wife would like you to have this."

"What is it?" I asked.

"The name of a really good doctor I know who does vasectomies."

"So, Daryl," continued my lunch companion, "you never once had the urge to go into the delivery room with your wife?"

I shook my head no, feeling a little guilty. "Not really," I admitted.

"Why not?"

"Oh, I don't know," I tried to explain. "It's just that I always seem to say the wrong things at times like that, and although my wife has this really good sense of humor, well, it always seemed to leave her once she was about eight or nine months pregnant. Plus there was this old Phil Donahue show that I could never quite get out of my mind."

"Old Phil Donahue show?" asked my friend with a puzzled expression.

"Yeah--if I remember right, I think it was entitled, `Men Who Have Witnessed Their Wives Giving Birth And Don't Ever Want To Have Sex Again.'"

"In other words," said my very discerning friend, "you were gutless?"

"Exactly."

"Well," he said, finishing the last bite of his meal, "if you're ever interested in seeing what you missed, feel free to drop by my place some evening. I've got the whole birth on tape -- every single second of it -- from the time little Brittany's head first popped out to this really great shot of the placenta."

And so much for desert, I thought to myself.

RCHS football: surprise finish

by Chuck Robinson

The River City High School varsity football team made a name for themselves and brought respect to West Sacramento with their strong showing in the "4th Annual Benicia Passing Tournament," held July 15 and 16 at Benicia High School.

It was River City's first-ever appearance at the tournament which brings together thirty-six of the top Bay Area and San Joaquin Valley high school football teams for two days of head-to-head competition.

The Raiders completed a three-game sweep on Friday to advance to the championship round. River City went 2-2 on Saturday for an impressive 5-2 overall record and sixth place finish in the 36-team tournament.

Quarterback Justin Hanks put forth a solid performance. Utilizing top receivers Alex Victor, Matt DeGroot, Angel Cardenas and Paul Barber, the Raiders' offense proved formidable. The stubborn River City defense was led by John Phoutachack, Josh Castro, Terry Warford and John Serowchack.

Head coach Rod Massey was obviously pleased with his teams strong showing:

"Who says wishbone teams can't pass? I'm just thrilled with our performance! We were one of the smaller schools in the tournament and we had concerns that we might be in over our heads. We certainly surprised a lot of people. This gives us a great deal of confidence and momentum for our first season in the newly-aligned Golden Empire League. All the hard work is starting to pay dividends."

Defensive coach Chris Baker was equally impressed. "We take great pride in beating the larger schools. It was encouraging to see the way our team responded to the challenge. We showed great character, great composure. We didn't back down from anybody and seemed to be at our best when the situation was at its worst. I'm anxious for the "real" season to begin."

The Raiders will begin their fall campaign on Monday, August 15. Team physical will be held on Wednesday, August 3 and Wednesday, August 10 at 6 p.m. in the River City men's locker room. The cost is $7 (cash only).

The San Francisco Giants have 12 victories in 14 games and have gained 8 games in 14 days on the first place Dodgers and moved back into second place. On the recent road trip the Giants were 8-2 with Barry Bonds and Matt Williams combining for 11 homers, eight by Bonds. The Dodgers losing road trip of 2-8, with 5 losses in a row, limps into San Francisco for the big showdown. With a strike looming in the middle of August this series will make or break the season. The A's are only 2 games back of the Texas Rangers and head south to play the Angels.

The N.F.L. football season starts with six games scheduled over this weekend. The Forty Niners continue working out every morning at 8:45 a.m. and 2:45 p.m. at Sierra College in Rocklin. The Forty Niners couldn't reach an agreement with one of their top draft choices, wide receiver Cory Fleming, so they released him and signed 6-foot-5 former N.Y. Giants wide receiver Ed McCaffrey.

Boxing promoter Don Chargin features the first boxing venture at Cache Creek Indian Casino. The out door card will be staged on Tuesday, August 2, at 8 p.m. The main event will feature WBC #5 rated junior welterweight Hector Lopez (28-3-1, 16 KO's) against Alphonse Perez (23-8, 18 KO's) from Mexico. In separate bouts, West Sacramento's Willie Jorrin, Angelo Nunez and Woodland's Richard Munoz. A bus ride to the Cache Creek boxing show will be leaving West Sacramento on Tuesday, August 2 and 5 p.m. returning at 11:30 p.m. The cost is $35 and includes the round-trip bus ride, the best $20 fight ticket, refreshments and food and when you arrive at Cache Creek the casino will issue each person a $5 food coupon, and $20 in playing chips. Aqua aerobics is held Monday through Thursday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Upbeat music, staff and cool water combine to give you energy which you thought you had lost. Using the resistance of the water, you will experience isotonic exercise working your legs, abdomen and upper body. Cost is $1.50 per class.

Lap swim will be available Monday through Thursday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. The 25-yard pool is perfect for laps, not too short and not too long. Lines will be available for those who wish to use them. Cost is $1.00 per day.

For additional information on these and other parks and community services programs, call 373-5860.

West Sacramento's Willie Jorrin will be on the card for boxing match in East Yolo Co.

Cache Creek Indian Casino and Bingo will host a live outdoor boxing card on August 2. The card features World Boxing Council #5-rated junior welterweight Hector Lopez (28-3-1, 16 KO's), Los Angeles, versus Alphonse Perez (23-8-18 KOs) of Guadalajara.

Promoted by Don Chargin, the card represents the first boxing venture for Cache Creek, located 15 miles west of Woodland on Highway 16.

"The members of the Rumsey Band of Wintun Indians, who operate the casino believe this event offers several major benefits," said Paula Lorenzo, chairman of the Tribal Council. "It will provide further progress towards the Rumsey Rancheria's economic development, and it will provide an entertaining sporting event for the residents of Yolo County.

"We're particularly pleased that the card is being organized by Don Chargin, one of California's top event managers and one of the most respected boxing promoters in America."

The card will be staged on a Tuesday night, when Cache Creek Casino is usually closed. Attendance for the event is expected to equal that of a night when the casino is open.

Chargin has high hopes for Lopez (28-3-1, 16 KOs). "Hector is very talented and extremely strong. If he gets past Perez I think we'll have a title shot signed by the end of the summer, either Juan Coggi or Julio Cesar Chavez."

Also featured on the card will be undefeated Mexican super bantamweight sensation Jose Luis Noyola and several top local fighters including undefeated featherweight Willie Jorrin of West Sacramento, Woodland junior lightweight Richard Munoz, and Sacramento's Angelo Nunez fighting in separate bouts.

The boxing arena will be set up on a portion of the casino's parking lot normally reserved for buses. Plenty of parking will be available on site.

Tickets, at $20 and $30, are available at Cache Creek, the Sacramento Radisson Hotel Gift Shop, and through Sid Tenner. Doors open at 7 p.m. with the first bout schedule for 8 p.m. Call Richard Novoa for bus trip information at 372-7332.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

It's prime time to discuss homeless shelter

The city of Davis, which often does not live up to the progressive ideals it is famous for, just approved plans for a homeless shelter in an eastern, suburban area.

Now would be a good idea for West Sacramento -- perhaps in a joint venture with the city across the river -- to do the same.

The Davis center will be run by a community organization, and social services will be provided nearby for those staying at the facility. The center would provide space for up to 16 people, and would be open during the cold weather months, November through April.

A similar facility is badly needed to serve those staying on the riverbanks on both sides of the Sacramento river. For reasons such as mental illness or financial disaster, homeless people already congregate in these areas, particularly in winter months. They set up camps on private property and build campfires, while the police in Sacramento and West Sacramento take turns rousting them and sending them back and forth across the river.

During the cold months, this kind of life is particularly unhealthy, and it is particularly dangerous to the very young, the very old and the weak. Some of these people are potentially "viable" members of society who, with a place to shower and a little help, would be able to get jobs and move back into the mainstream of society.

Of course, homelessness is not the important social issue it was a year or two ago. Right now, America is talking about crime.

But it remains a problem. And if West Sacramento is able to work alongside Sacramento to provide a plan for emergency winter shelter, the results will benefit not only hundreds of homeless people, but society as well.

The costs may not be as high as imagined. The price of policing these riverbank campers will probably go down as they are helped into a legal, supervisable shelter. So will the cost to taxpayers spent on welfare and social services, as some of these folks are helped to become contributing members of society.

With fall and winter just around the corner, and with inter-city relations between Sacramento and West Sacramento improving, there is no better time to discuss the possibility of a new emergency shelter.

Southport group says thanks to local school board

Open letter to W.U.S.D. school superintendent, from Dan Amegin, president of the Southport Homeowners Association:

Dr. Miller and Members of the Board:

On behalf of the homeowners in the Windsor Meadows and Windset subdivisions, the Southport Homeowners Association would like to express our appreciation to the superintendent and the board for your responsive and equitable solution to the excessively high and inefficient Mello-Roos tax that was intended to build a new elementary school in Southport. State mandated school impact fees add about $4,000 to the cost of a newly constructed house. In lieu of paying developer fees, the developer of Windsor/Windset entered into an agreement with the district to create a Community Facilities District ("CFD") that would tax the purchasers of the homes directly, instead of taxing the developer.

Most home buyers were horrified to discover that they would be paying an extra $600 or more a year for 23 years, which would equal as much as $18,000 (with projected tax increases). What is more, this heavy tax burden would raise only $1.3 million, a third to a quarter of the cost today of a new elementary school!

Windsor/Windset homeowners are committed to improving the quality of our schools throughout the district. However, $1.3 million does not even begin to address the need for funding to modernize existing school facilities and to build new schools. And, in addition, $600 a year severely impacted the ability and willingness of voters in the CFD to vote for much more cost effective general obligation school bonds.

The board's solution was both ingenious and fair. By not issuing Mello-Roos bonds, the district's tax consultant found that a reduced tax rate over a seven year period would raise at least $1.3 million. Moreover, the total cost to the homeowners would be approximately equal to the developer fees they would have paid without a CFD.

The Southport Homeowners Association is proud of the part we played in helping to focus attention on this problem, and we are grateful to the board for their thoughtful response. Now that the Mello-Roos tax inequity has been resolved, a more fundamental problem remains. How will West Sacramento, as a community, pay for its enormous school facilities modernization and new construction needs?

Improving the educational climate by providing adequate school facilities is one of the greatest challenges facing this newly elected school board. The Southport Homeowners Association wants to offer our support to work with the board, the administration and their consultants in the search for community-based solutions to the school funding dilemma that will benefit the entire district.

To that end, we would like to suggest that other community organizations join in a united effort to provide all the children of West Sacramento with an environment where they can grow safely and learn to prepare for the jobs of the future. The goal of quality schools will be achieved if the people of West Sacramento care enough to make it happen.

Letters to the Editor

Responsibility

Pardon me for being nosy - but now that we have the sewer plant scandal swept up in a tidy pile and are about to sweep it discreetly under the rug, could I take a last peek? What happened to the three city employees who were brave enough to be whistleblowers? The last I heard they were on leave for stress and one had his life threatened. I don't mind stepping over a few small lumps under the carpet but I balk at tripping over covered bodies.

I'm glad that Mark Fleming, former fiery critic of the Sacramento Valley Toxics Campaign, has reconciled his differences with the city. I won't be at all disillusioned if his group is eventually awarded part of the fine money that the city will request go to local environmental projects. At least he'll live to fight another day.

But I do question the means justifying the end. One city official was quoted as saying "We had to start assembling our own bomb, you might say, when the word got out that we were willing to spread some damaging and very embarrassing information about other people and places, the fire around us quickly died down. We still have the bomb." Sounds like shades of old J. Edgar Hoover, politics by blackmail. Maybe some of these officials should heed the old gospel hymn and use the river water in question to wash themselves clean.

Also, I picked up a copy of the "Insider," the monthly publication of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce. I was struck by a paragraph that read..."although both local business and local government have the interest of the community at heart, too often they operate as opposing teams trying to hold each other back...what is not so clear is why...parties with similar goals and objectives will so often wind up working as opposing teams."

Unfortunately the reason is crystal clear to many consumers who have tried to collect on an insurance policy, or get a car dealer to take back a "lemon," or get an oil company to clean up a spill. While most business people are honest, we still instinctively live by the motto "Let the buyer beware." We don't elect our local businessmen but we do elect our government officials. A big part of their job is to protect the people from unscrupulous business tactics.

I think our present city council takes that responsibility seriously. Thank goodness they do when one considers the pending bills the "Insider" tells local business to actively fight by letter and media campaign. They are against such legislation as SB1489 which would make employee's industrial injury medical records confidential and require employers requesting medical records under the Americans with Disabilities Act to do so under penalty of perjury; against AB 3531 that would boost a fine to $15,000 to be levied against an employer who discharges or discriminates against an employee who files (or intends to file) a worker's compensation claim; against SB 1512 which would require employers and health providers to provide job applicants who were not hired with a copy of pre-placement medical examination reports upon request.

The "Insider" is also against new labor laws pertaining to increased protection from sexual harassment on the job, against allowing employees involved in collective bargaining to take court action if they choose to waive previous arbitration decisions, and against raising weekly unemployment benefits from $230 to $245 a week. As an "outsider" and employee, these sound like excellent new laws to me and a prime example of why we need government to protect us from business.

Others have put it more eloquently. President Jack Kennedy when hearing about the price increases of U.S. steel - "My father always told me that all businessmen were sons of bitches, but I never believed it till now." If it takes one to know one, Joseph Kennedy should be an expert on the subject. And jumping back a century, Alexandre Dumas the Younger's definition of business - "Business? It's quite simple. It's other people's money."

Harbor Blvd.

At the July 20 city council meeting, the public was brought up to date on Harbor Blvd. widening project (between West Capitol Ave. and Reed Ave.) Highlights of that update were: (1) All property or rights-of-way have been finalized via negotiations; (2) Due to this "later-than-anticipated start-up date-to-be," the widening of Harbor Blvd. - the pavement - will not start until next year; (3) The rest of this construction year will concentrate on infrastructure work such as relocating and updating the utility lines; (4) Early 1995 - after the rain season - the ground beneath the wider Harbor Blvd. will be void of those present utility lines; thus, "all should be clear" to widen Harbor Blvd. - including the underpass beneath the tracks north of Rice Ave.; (5) There should be no significant closing of the railroad crossing this year; (6) We will still get our 4 lanes, the 2-way left turn lane and the bike lanes - and, presumably, the off-street parking needs will be adequately addressed and (7) The final completion date is still planned for late 1995, just before the heavy rains we will need.

Many said it would never happen, but the big steps have been taken. And while it is unfortunate that those Harbor Blvd. property owners have been inconvenienced, it is not only better and necessary for West Sacramento overall, but most of the remaining property on Harbor Blvd. should become much more valuable as a result of the widening. Watch that areaimprove after late 1995.

Meanwhile, the city manager's staff should be providing "monthly progress reports" on this and other important projects such as the big (Southport overpass) bridge.

Area's sports leagues join together to coordinate efforts

The West Sacramento Sports Federation consists of all the youth sports organizations in West Sacramento, such as the West Sacramento Little League, Washington Little League, Washington Girls Softball, East Yolo Soccer League, West Sacramento Tackle Football League, Dolphins Swim Team, and American Legion Baseball.

The purpose of the sports federation is to ensure that the needed facilities are available to each specific group during the season of play and that there is not a conflict of facility use. The federation also allows each sports organization to interact directly with the department of parks and community services to ensure that all park facilities are safe and in excellent shape. The sports federation, along with the Washington Unified School District, also dictates what school or park facility will be available for use.

The sports federation consists of the presidents of all the youth organizations in the West Sacramento area. Meetings are held every two months. During these meetings all league and tournament schedules are discussed and finalized. The sports federation works closely to successfully eliminate field use problems before they arise. The goal of the federation is to provide the youth of the community with organized and fulfilling sports opportunities.

Pre-school opportunities available

Violation of procedures at drinking water plant did not affect West Sacramento's tap water quality

By David Weller

The illegal drinking water treatment plant discharges which state Water Quality Control Board engineers told West Sacramento on July 7 were illegal occurred at an auxiliary groundwater treatment plant located at the end of Lake Road near Enterprise Blvd and Interstate 80. The plant is used only during peak periods of water usage, which include the summer months

The city's primary water treatmemt system is located on "Bryte Bend," along the northern Sacramento riverfront.

The state inspection occurred on June 27, and was conducted in response to a complaint that the city was discharging filter backwash into a storm drain which leads into Lake Washington.

The violation did not affect the quality of the drinking water coming out of the plant, but did send concentrations of manganese and iron into a drainage ditch leading to the lake.

The problem was originally called to the attention of the city department of public works after an annual inspection by the state health department. The city was in the process of addressing the problem when the notification of violation came from the WQCB inspector.

Water flowing into the ditch was overflow water from a backwash water storage tank. Water held in the tank is normally sent to the sewage treatment plant. At the time the plant was built, the ditch did not exist, and overflow water was allowed to spill onto the ground, where it evaporated or soaked into the soil.

The state has given the city a choice of applying for a discharge permit, or stopping the discharge. Larry Gossett, the city's Director of Public Works, chose to fix the problem.

The day after the WQCB notification, the city public works department stopped using the plant. It is now required to submit a report of waste discharge and a work plan to assess impacts on the storm drain and the lake to the state.

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board notified the city of West Sacramento public works department in June that the drinking water treatment plant was illegally "discharging filter backwash into Lake Washington via a storm drain," according to Richard McHenry, an inspector for the Water Quality Control Board.

The violation did not effect the quality of the drinking water coming out of the plant, but did effect the quality of water going into Lake Washington, parts of which are connected to the deep water channel.

Drinking water that comes from ground water is run through filters to clean it of particulates. Periodically the plant cleans the filters by running water through them backward. The dirty water that results from cleaning the filters should have been diverted directly to the sewage treatment plant. Instead water plant was discharging it into a storm drain that comes out in Lake Washington.

McHenry said that Larry Gossett of the city's department of public works notified his office by telephone within two days of the original complaint that the problem had been fixed.

The state is still awaiting written confirmation.
